China, the US, and the EU are taking different approaches to leveraging global data flows for their economic growth. The struggle over data access will be a growing part of strategic technology and geopolitical tensions over the next decade

Tom Nunlist is an Associate Director for Tech and Data Policy at Trivium China. Prior to Trivium, he was a political risk analyst at Hill and Associates. Tom has lived in Shanghai for nine years.

China Crossroads hosts talks on all topics related to China, including business, foreign policy, and other areas as they relate to China, the idea being that China is both already a “crossroads” of the world and itself at a “crossroads” in terms of its future global influence.
